Cookie policy

What do I need to know about cookies?

Page updated: 30 June 2021

Cookies are small pieces of data that are downloaded to your computer or mobile device when you visit a website or application.

We use them to

- Remember information about you, so you don't have to give it to us again.
- Help us understand how people are using our website, so we can make it better
- Help us personalise the Fontana identity & design website to you by remembering your preferences and settings.

These necessary functional cookies do not require the consent of the user.

There are different types of cookies

First Party Cookies: These cookies are created, set and managed by the website you're visiting. And only that website can read them. By recording certain information (such as your choice of language, pages visited or how long you visit a page) we can improve your user experience.

Third Party Cookies: These cookies are created, set and managed by someone other than the owner of the website you're visiting such as social media or advertisers. Some Fontana identity & design web pages may also contain content from other sites like YouTube, which may set their own cookies. Also, if you share a link to a Fontana identity & design page, the service you share it on (for example, Facebook) may set a cookie on your browser. We have no control over third-party cookies - you can turn them off, but not through us. Website operators must ask your explicit consent to put them on your hard disk.
